Issued orders effective Dec. 10 which effected a major reorganization of the Kentucky Air National Guard, from top to bottom. The 123d Group Headquarters and the Combat Support Squadron were returned to the control of the National Guard Bureau, and were thus inactivated. The Wing Headquarters was changed so that in addition to the traditional positions for commander and vice commander there were now two additional deputy commander positions-one for operations and the other for logistics. A new 123d Combat Support Group was also created in the alterations.

Dec. 10 1974 ... A major structural reorganization of the KyANG inactivated the 123d Tac Recon Group at Louisville and changed the wing command structure extensively. The Combat Support Sq became the 123d Combat Support Gp, and the 189th Tac Recon Group at Little Rock AFB was relieved of assignment to the 123d Tac Recon Wing at the same time. The 123d Reconnaissance Technical Sq at Adams Field was released from the Arkansas group and remained assigned to the 123d headquarters at Louisville.
