EMBLEM

174th Tactical Fighter Group Patch was designed by SSG David Getty and other unit members. The York Rose represents the state of New York where the unit was constituted, with 13 seeds for the original colonies. The sword formed by a stylized aircraft and its Jetstream alludes to the striking power of the Group, while the wings signify combat in flight. The background depicts the sky, the primary theater of Air Force operations. The emblem bears the national and Air Force colors.
