EMBLEM

HRA 94-218

381 Training Support Squadron emblem: On an ultramarine azure disc, a Brittany azure and vert globe is placed at middle base. An AF or missile is positioned above the globe at the honor point. The missile is followed by an argent contrail, which orbits the earth. The disc is bordered or. An argent scroll is attached below the disc. The scroll, which is blank, is also bordered with or. Significance: The globe depicts the worldwide space and missile mission the squadron supports. The missile symbolizes the ICBM and space mission the squadron trains and supports.

(Approved, 16 Nov 1994)

381 Training Support Squadron emblem: On a disc quartered Sable and Azure, in chief five mullets enarched Argent, and in base a four parted flight symbol point to chief Gules, two Argent and Azure, surmounted at point by a torch Or enflamed Proper, all within a narrow border Yellow. Attached below the disc, a Blue scroll edged with a narrow Yellow border and inscribed "381 TRAINING SUPPORT SQ" in Yellow letters. SIGNIFICANCE: Ultramarine blue and Air Force yellow are the Air Force colors. Blue alludes to the sky, the primary theater of Air Force operations. Yellow refers to the sun and the excellence required of Air Force personnel. The flight symbol denotes the Air Force and the Squadron's commitment to excellence. The five stars signify the five major areas for space and missile operations and maintenance: satellite operations, missile operations, space surveillance operations, space launch operations and missile warning operations. (Approved, 11 Feb 2003)

OPERATIONS

The 381 Training Support Squadron provides essential support for group staff and five squadrons conducting training for the nation's space and missile operations and maintenance forces. It ensures Air Education and Training Command requirements and training objectives are satisfied to include resolving manpower, finance and resource issues. It also manages life-cycle development of interactive courseware, oversees the military training program, and conducts faculty development training.
