Its present location, a one and three-quarter million dollar hospital, the 4th Tactical Hospital was dedicated 4 December 1959. The single level structure was completely air conditioned and could accommodate 75 beds and expand to 100 beds with additional construction. On 24 May 1971, it was renamed the United States Air Force Hospital, Seymour Johnson by Special Order G126-21, May 1971, when all United States Air Force hospitals were named by their locations.
